IRENÆUS, Saint.

An eminent Father of the Church of the second century. By birth a Greek. Born probably near Smyrna. Suffered martyrdom about 202 or 208. A good edition of his remains was published in 1702, by Grabe, in folio; but the best is that of Maffuei 1734. An excellent edition, edited by Adolphus Stieren, has recently been completed, 2 vols. 8°. Lips. 1853.

IRVINE, Rev. Andrew, B.D.

Sermon, Heb. 4. 14. 8°. Lond. 1830

IRVING, Edward, M.A.

A divine of the Church of Scotland. One of the most eloquent preachers of modern times. Born at Annan, Scotland, 1792. Educated at the University of Edinburgh. Assistant-minister of St. John's, Glasgow, 1819. Minister of the Scotch Church, Cross Street, Hatton Garden, London, 1822; for the congregation of which a large church was erected in Regent Square 1829. Ejected from the Church of Scotland for asserting that Christ took flesh in fallen humanity in order to redeem it; owing to some strong expressions which he used, but the meaning attributed to which he disavowed. Expelled from his charge in 1832, for allowing utterances in the church which he considered to be "manifestations of the Spirit." Died 1834. He was a divine of great intellectual endowments, considerable learning, a rich imagination, sometimes too much for the control of an otherwise found and discriminating judgment, remarkable simplicity and guilelessness of character, generous, disinterested, and pious.

For the oracles of God, four orations. [On John, 5. 39.] Preparation for consulting the oracles of God. The manner of consulting the oracles of God. The obeying of the oracles of God. For judgment to come, an argument, in nine parts. [On Acts, 17. 30, 31.] Third edition. 8°. Lond. 1824

Originally published in 8°, Lond. 1828.

On 2 Tim. 3. 1-6. Introductory discourse, 1; Lovers of self, covetous, boasters, 36; Proud, blasphemers, 54; Disobedient to parents, 66; Unthankful, 90; Unholy, 112; Without natural affection, 138; Truce-breakers, 155; False accusers, 173; Incontinent, 196; Fierce, 220; Despisers of those that are good, 244; Traitors, 268; Heady, high-minded, 295; Lovers of pleasure more (rather) than lovers of God, 317; Having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof, 344; Discourse recapitulatory, to shew the pharisaical character of the times, 388; Improvement, 439.

A work of power, but not of effort; giving evidence of a gifted mind and an observant eye; containing in it much that belongs to the very highest style both of description and of eloquence, yet nothing elaborate, nothing artificial, nothing ambitious; stamped throughout with irrepressible genius, yet breathing everywhere the spirituality and fervour of the man of God.

JACKSON, Thomas, D.D., Dean of Peterborough.

Born at Willowing, Durham, 1579. Admitted of Queen's College, Oxford, 1595. Removed to Corpus Christi 1596. Became Vice-President of his College, and afterwards Vicar of Newcastle. President of his College 1630. Prebendary of Winchester 1633. Dean of Peterborough 1638. Died 1640. Originally a Calvinist, but became Arminian. He was profoundly read in the Fathers, and endowed with an uncommon depth of judgment: his works have been admired and studied by many eminent divines; they form a magazine of theological knowledge everywhere penned with great elegance and dignity: yet no works stand more in need of an analysis. In the following analysis, two sets of pagination are given; the first referring to the octavo edition, the second to that in 3 vol. folio, 1673. Southey places him among the very best of our divines. George Herbert says, "I bless God for the confirmation Dr. Jackson has given me in the Christian religion against the Atheist, Jew, and Socinian, and in the Protestant against Rome."

Works. A new edition, with a copious index.

Bishop of Ypres 1635. Died of the plague 1638. His Augustinus, which was the result of twenty years' labour, unfolds the doctrine of St. Augustine concerning man's natural corruption, and the nature and efficacy of that divine grace which alone can recover it. It was published posthumously, and was immediately attacked by the Jesuits, and condemned in 1641 by a Papal bull; and again in 1653, when the famous five propositions were extracted from it.

JARCHI, or RASCHI.

In Hebrew writings the name of this author appears under the abbreviations Ra-Sch-J, which the elder Buxtorf erroneously read Rabbi Schelomoh JARCHI, instead of JIZCHAKI. Since the time of Buxtorf this error has been retained. Jizchaki was born at Troyes in 1040, and became the founder of the Rabbinical literature of Germany and France. He wrote commentaries to all the Hebrew Scriptures and to half of the Babylonian Talmud. His Biblical expositions frequently combine his own Peshat (plain and simple explanation) with quotations from the allegories and traditions of the Rabbins. They have often been translated into Latin. The last and best translation has been furnished by Breithaupt.

JEWEL, John, Bishop of Salisbury.

One of the Fathers of the English Church. Born in Devonshire 1522. Admitted of Merton College, Oxford, JEWEL, Bishop (continued).

1535. Chosen scholar of Corpus Christi College 1539, and became a celebrated tutor and reader of humanity and logic. Having joined the reformers, he was expelled on the accession of Queen Mary, and fled to the Continent. Returned 1559. Bishop of Salisbury 1560. Died 1571. Few writings are considered more truly to represent the Church of England than those of Bishop Jewel. He was of a thin habit of body, which he exhausted by intense application to his studies; he was pleasant, affable, modest, temperate, and pious. The best old edition of his works is that of 1611, in folio. The recent editions by Dr. Jelf, 8 vol. 8°. Oxf. 1847, and that edited for the Parker Society by Mr. Ayre, are the most complete.

JOHNSON, John, M.A., Vicar of Cranbrook.

An eminent and learned divine. Born 1662. Admitted Fellow of St. Mary Magdalen College, Cambridge, 1677-8. Scholar of Corpus Christi 1682. Vicar of Boughton-under-the-Blean, and of Hern Hill, 1687. Vicar of St. John, Isle of Thanet, and of Appledore, 1697. Vicar of Cranbrook, Kent, 1707. Died 1725. In his latter years he became a Nonjuror in principle. His Unbloody Sacrifice is the most complete work on the Eucharist considered as a sacrifice, particularly in the large collection of authorities from the Fathers, which are printed in full. The edition of 1847 (the third of the first and second of the second volume) contains the additions made in the second edition of the first volume in 1724, which is now extremely rare.

JOHNSON, Samuel, LL.D.

One of the most distinguished writers of the eighteenth century. Born at Lichfield 1709. Entered a commoner of Pembroke College, Oxford, 1728. Removed to London 1737, and became an author by profession. Died 1784.

In the edition of his works published in 1787-9, some pieces were inserted which were not written by Dr. Johnson. The first good edition was published in 1792, 12 vol. 8^o. To which it is necessary to add, Parliamentary Debates, 2 vol. Sermons left for publication by Dr. John Taylor, which are undoubtedly by Dr. Johnson, 2 vol. or 1 vol.; and Prayers and Meditations published by Dr. Strachan, 1 vol. All these are included in the edition, Oxf. 1825, 11 vol. 8^o, as are also some smaller pieces, as noted in the entry of that edition below. With the exception of the Parliamentary Debates, and the Sermons, the additions are also contained in the edition, 2 vol. 8^o, Lond. 1850.

JOHNSTONE, William Henry, M.A.

Chaplain of Addiscombe.

Israel after the flesh, the Judaism of the Bible separated from its spiritual religion. 8°. Lond. 1850

The old covenant, 1; Federal institutions, 34; Holiness, 71; A future state, 105; The faith of Israel, 135; Rabbinical errors, 167; The Judaism of Jesus, 207; Christian Jews, 240; Israel in the future, 280.

The design of this work is to prove that Judaism, or the Old Covenant, was exclusively temporal, national, and territorial, confined to the descendants of Israel, and based upon possession of Canaan. It was at no time a system of individual justification; nor had it regard to eternal life. While yet it could not be perfected, without Christianity co-existing and co-operating.

De cultu imaginum. Grynæus, Lat. 1526;
Bibl. Max. Patr. 14. 166

JONATHAN Ben Uzziel.

Lived in the days of Christ, and was, according to Talmudical tradition, the author of one of the Targumim or Chaldean paraphrases. The work is extremely interesting to the biblical scholar, as originating from a period when the Hebrew language was supplanted by the Aramaic dialect, and when ancient Jewish traditions and Scriptural explications were introduced in the paraphrases which were read during the divine service of the Jews. However, many allusions to historical names and events justify the conclusion at which modern criticism has arrived, that this paraphrase has been greatly remodelled by various hands, and, in the form in which it has reached us, cannot take its date anterior to the second half of the seventh century. (See Zunz gottesdienstliche Vorträge der Juden, pp. 61-83.) See also the article Targum in the present work.

JOSEPHUS, Flavius.
The celebrated historian of the Jews. Born at Jerusalem about A.D. 37. Joined the sect of the Pharisees. Taken prisoner after defending Jotapata seven weeks. Taken by Vespasian and Titus to the siege of Jerusalem, of which he was an eye-witness. Died about A.D. 93. He is a writer of great eloquence and penetration. St. Jerome styles him the Greek Livy. Best editions of his works, Hudson, 2 vol. folio, Oxf. 1720. Improved by Havercamp, 1726. Hudson's is the more elegantly printed edition; a good edition of the Greek text only, edited by Richter, was published at Leipzig, 1826, 7 vol. 12°. Among the numerous English translations, that of Whitton is the best, with the exception of the recent translation of the Jewish War by Traill, which is greatly superior.

JULIAN.

The Roman Emperor, commonly styled the Apostate. Born at Constantinople 331. Educated in the Christian faith by Eusebius, Bishop of Nicomedia, but perverted by Maximus, an Ephesian philosopher. Became emperor 361, on which he established the heathen worship, and laboured assiduously to subvert Christianity. Killed in battle 363. He was a philosopher of the Alexandrian school, eloquent, temperate, and virtuous. The best edition of his works is that of 1696. His life by La Bleterie is well written.

The drunkard's character; or, a true drunkard, with such sins as reign in him: viz. pride, ignorance, enmity, atheism, idleness, adultery, murder, with many the like, lively set forth in their colours. Together with, Complete armour against evil society, the which may serve for a common-place book of the most usual sins. 8°. Lond. 1638

A curious work, dedicated to Bp. Hall, containing very acute and forcible passages and descriptions.

JUNIUS.

A political writer of extraordinary powers, the varied resources of which have enabled him, with the peculiar characteristic of genius, to dignify and immortalise that which in its own nature is secondary and perishable. The real name of the author has not yet been proved, although numerous books have been published on the subject. Above half a century has elapsed since he wrote, and his own declaration remains true, "I am the sole depository of my own secret, and it shall perish with me." The standard edition is that published by the original printer, Woodfall, 1812, 3 vol. 8°. The following is the best of recent editions.

Junius; including letters by the same writer under other signatures: to which are added, his confidential correspondence with Mr. Wilkes and his private letters to Mr. H. S. Woodfall. A new and enlarged edition; with new evidence as to the authorship, and an analysis by the late Sir Harris Nicolas. By John Wade. 2 vol. Sm. 8°. Lond. 1850
Vol. 1. The entire work as originally published, with illustrative notes.

Vol. 2. The private correspondence and miscellaneous letters, and a new essay on the authorship.

JUNIUS Secundus.

"This youngest Junius does not carry the poisoned dagger of his great prototype, but wears the rapier of a gentleman. The style is not antithetic and caustic like that of the elder Junius,—but flowing, sparkling, and pungent." Individual despotism dangerous to public liberty:

a letter of rebuke and admonition addressed to Dr. Campbell, editor of the British Banner; occasioned by his violent attacks on the distributors and the receivers of the English Regium Donum, on the Wesleyan Methodists, and on other religious denominations. Second edition, with copious additions. Pp. i-vi. 76. 8°. Lond. 1849

Born 1637, in Orleanais. Died 1713. A French Protestant divine, and a great controvertist. His life was a continual warfare. He wrote against Bayle, Jaquelot, Arnauld, Bossuet. His motto might have been

“Tros Rutulusve fuit, nullo discrimine habeo.”

He travelled in England, Holland, and France; was Lecturer on Divinity successively at Sedan and Rotterdam, where he died.

JUSTINIAN.

The first Roman emperor of his name, and celebrated for his code of laws. Succeeded to the imperial throne 527. Died 565, at the age of eighty-three. He collected the Roman laws into one body, having selected ten of the most able lawyers, who revised the Gregorian, Theodosian, and Hermogenian codes. They were compiled into one body, called The Code. The decisions of the judges and other magistrates, which lay scattered in about 2000 vols., after ten years' labour, chiefly by Tribonian, an eminent lawyer, were reduced to the number of fifty, and called Digests or Pandects. For the use of students he ordered four books of Institutes to be drawn up by Tribonian, Dorotheus, and Theophilus; and the laws of modern date were put into one volume, called Novellæ or New Code. The whole are now published under the general title of Corpus Juris Civilis. The editions with Gothofredus's notes are much esteemed.

The journal of sacred literature; edited by John Kitto, D.D., F.S.A. 7 vol. 8°. New series, 4 vol. In all 11 vol. 8°. Lond. 1848-53

This journal supplies a want, which had been long felt, of a periodical entirely devoted to biblical literature, and on so wide a basis as to embrace the contributions of different denominations and of different countries. Its aim is to furnish the students and readers of biblical literature with an organ for the discussion of all the subjects in which they are interested, and for the interchange of their views upon questions of equal importance to them all. It forms a repository of the best results of the active biblical research of the present age; by reviews, intelligence, and correspondence, it furnishes a library of original and translated dissertations and essays of permanent value.

KNOX, John.

The chief instrument and promoter of the Reformation in Scotland. Born at Gifford, in East Lothian, 1505. Educated at the Grammar-school, Haddington, and at the University of St. Andrews. After receiving priest's orders he adopted the principles of the Reformation, and became tutor in the family of Hugh Douglas, of Long-Niddrie, and catechised publicly in the chapel there. Preacher at St. Andrews 1547. Carried prisoner to France. Set at liberty and went to England 1549. Appointed Preacher, first at Berwick, and next at Newcastle. Chaplain to Edward VI. 1552. Fled to Geneva at the accession of Queen Mary. Returned to Scotland 1555. Died 1572. The first edition of his History of the Reformation, printed at Edinburgh 1584, is exceedingly rare, and only to be found in an imperfect state. A good edition was published by Ruddiman in 1732, folio; but it has been edited in a much more complete and correct manner by David Laing, Esq., 2 vol. 8°, 1846-48. This is to be followed by a complete and accurate collection of the other works of the Reformer.

Works; collected and edited by David Laing.

Vol. 1 and 2 being all yet published. 8°.

LAPIDE, Cornelius à.

A learned and pious Jesuit. Born in the diocese of Liege. Professor of Hebrew during twenty years at Louvain. Afterwards he gave lectures on the Holy Scriptures at Rome for many years, in which he particularly attended to the literal sense. Died 1637. His commentaries do not include Job, or the Psalms. They are held in great estimation by the learned. He investigates with much ability the literal, historical, grammatical, allegorical, moral, and analogical sense of the sacred writers. He was well conversant with the Hebrew and Greek languages, and with the commentators that had preceded him. Many editions have been printed of his commentaries, as well in separate volumes, as uniformly. A new edition in 11 vol. 4°. has recently been published at Lyons.

LARDNER, Nathaniel, D.D.

A Unitarian minister of great learning. Born at Hawkhurst, Kent, 1684. Educated in London, and studied at Utrecht and Leyden. Assistant-minister at Crutched Friars 1729. Died 1768. "In the applause of Dr. Lardner all parties of Christians are united, regarding him as the champanion of their common and holy faith. Secker, Porteus, Watson, Tomline, Jortin, Hey, and Paley, of the Anglican Church; Doddridge, Kippis, and Priestley, amongst the Dissenters; and all foreign Protestant biblical critics, have rendered public homage to his learning, his fairness, and his great merits as a Christian apologist. The candid of the literati of the Romish communion have extolled his labours; and even Morgan and Gibbon, professed unbelievers, have awarded to him the mead of faithfulness and impartiality. By collecting a mass of scattered evidences in favour of the authenticity of the evangelical history, he established a bulwark on the side of truth which infidelity has never presumed to attack."—The Rev. T. H. HORNE.

His whole works were carefully edited in 11 vol. 8°, 1788. Reprinted 4 vol. 4°, 1817; and 10 vol. 8°, 1827.

LAUNOY, John de.

Doctor of Sorbonne. Born 1603, in Normandy. One of the most learned men of his age. He was appointed in 1643 Censor of Books by Chancellor Seguier, but his love of truth soon induced him to resign that post. When the doctrines of Janfenius were censured by the Sorbonne, Launoy gave his opinion in such a manner that "he proved himself," says Bossuet, "both a Semi-Pelagian and a Janfenist." Launoy's works are extremely interesting, especially his correspondence. He died in 1678.

Opera omnia, ad selectum ordinem revocata.

Ineditis opusculis aliquot, notis nonnullis dogmaticis, historicis et criticis, auctoris vita, variis monumentis tum ad Launoyum tum ad scripta ipsius pertinentibus, præfationibus cuique volumini affixis, indicibus locupletissimis, aucta et illustrata; accessit tractatus de varia Launoyi librorum fortuna. 5 vol. in 10. LAW, Edmund, D.D., Bishop of Carlisle.

Born at Cartmel, Lancashire, 1703. Educated at St. John's College, Cambridge. Elected Fellow of Christ's College. Rector of Graystock, Cumberland, 1737. Archdeacon of Carlisle 1743. Master of Peter House, Cambridge, 1756. Head Librarian of the University 1760. Bishop of Carlisle 1769. Died 1787. He was an able metaphysician and a learned divine.

Considerations on the state of the world with regard to the theory of religion, &c. 8°.

Camb. 1745

This work was enlarged in future editions. The following is the latest and most complete.

Considerations on the theory of religion. To which is prefixed, A life of the author by the late William Paley, D.D. A new edition, by Geo. Henry Law, D.D., Bishop of Chester. 8°.

London. 1820

Life of the author, by Archdeacon Paley.

Want of universality in natural and revealed religion no objection against either. [On Acts, 17. 30.] 1

The plan of Providence with regard to the time and manner of the several dispensations of revealed religion. [On Gal. 4. 4.] 43

The progress of natural religion and science; or the continual improvement of the world in general. [On Ecclef. 7. 10.] 223

Reflections on the life and character of Christ 309

The nature and end of death under the Christian covenant. [On Heb. 2. 14, 15.] 369

Appendix concerning the use of the words, soul or spirit, in Holy Scripture, and the state of the dead 399

Index 485

An enquiry into the ideas of space, time, immensity, and eternity; as also the self-existence, necessary existence, and unity of the Divine nature: in answer to a book lately published by Mr. Jackson, entitled, The Existence and Unity of God proved from his Nature and Attributes. To which is added, A dissertation upon the argument, à priori, for proving the existence of a First Cause. By a learned hand. 8°.

Camb. 1734

This work has become very scarce.

A discourse, John, 20. 30, 31, upon the life and character of Christ. 8°.

Camb. 1749

This discourse was afterwards published, omitting some abstruse notes, and with an appendix added, under the following title, and also included in late editions of the Theory of Religion.

Reflections on the life and character of Christ.

With a summary, and appendix, on the gospelmorals. F. I. Pp. 76. 8°.

LAW, William, A.M.

A pious and able Nonjuror. Born at Kingcliffe, Northamptonshire, 1686. Entered of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, 1705. Elected Fellow 1711. This he vacated in 1716, having refused to take the oaths on the accession of George I. Died 1761. His works, especially his three Letters to Hoadly, contain the finest specimens of controversial writing in our language for style, wit, and argument.
Gibbon has happily described his practical works in the following sentence: "Law's precepts are rigid, but they are founded on the gospel; his satire is sharp, but is drawn from the knowledge of human life; and many of his portraits are not unworthy the pen of La Bruyère." Dr.
Johnson said, that his Serious Call contained the finest hortatory theology in any language. Law was deeply read in the Mystic divinity, and some of his works are powerfully written in that strain. A collection of his works was made in 1762, 9 vol. 8°, but it has now become very scarce. It does not include two sermons which he published separately, nor a small tract entitled, Letters to a Lady inclined to enter the Communion of the Church of Rome.

Works. 9 vol. 8°. Lond. 1762

Vol. 1.

Three letters to the Bishop of Bangor. [Hoadly.]

[Also in Scholar Armed, i. 279.]

The Bp. of Bangor's late sermon, and his letter to Dr. Snape in defence of it, answered. And the dangerous nature of some doctrines in his Preservative, set forth in a letter to his lordship. Ninth edit.
Lond. 1753.

A second letter to the Bp. of Bangor; wherein his lordship's notions of benediction, absolution, and church-communion, are proved to be destructive to every institution of the Christian religion. To which is added, A postscript, in answer to the objections that have been made against his former letter. Fifth edition. Lond. 1762.

A reply to the Bp. of Bangor's Answer to the Representation of the Committee of Convocation. Humbly addressed to his lordship. Second edition. Lond.

LE CENE, Charles.

Born at Caen, in Normandy, 1647; died 1703. Minister of the Reformed Church; of Socinian principles. After the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, he removed to England, where he died. His plan for a new translation of the Bible had been sharply criticized; but it was carried into execution by Michel le Cene, son of Charles, and published at Amsterdam in 1741, 2 vol. folio.

Projet d'une nouvelle version François de la Bible. 8°.

Rotterdam, 1696

An essay for a new translation of the Bible, wherein is shewn that there is a necessity for a new translation. Second edition, to which is added, a table of the texts of Scripture. 8°.

LE CLERC [CLERICUS], John.

A celebrated Protestant writer, and universal scholar. Born at Geneva 1657. Studied divinity under Meitzrat and Turretin. Ordained 1679. Renounced Calvinism, became a zealous Arminian, and was appointed Lecturer in the college belonging to the Remonstrants at Amsterdam. Died 1736. His learning was profound, his reading immense, and his genius fertile. His work on the Holy Scriptures, particularly that part on the Pentateuch, is full of learned and ingenious criticism. He edited Erasmi opera, Cotelieri Patres Apostolici, Grotius de Veritate, Rymeri Federa, and other works. The reviews of books in his Bibliothèques are, perhaps, more complete, and more accurate, than those in the Nouvelles de la République des Lettres. They are interspersed with essays on different subjects, relating to divinity, sacred criticism, history, and moral philosophy. An eminent French critic calls Le Clerc "le second et très estimable journaliste après Bayle."

Vetus Testamentum, ex translatione Joannis Clerici, cum ejusdem paraphrasi perpetua, commentario philologico, dissertationibus criticis, et tabulis chronologicis. 4 vol. Folio.

in a series of lectures; compiled from the best authorities, and principally from Oriental sources, designed for the use of students in the universities. Third edition, enriched, with much original matter. 8°. Lond. 1841

A lexicon, Hebrew, Chaldee, and English; compiled from the most approved sources, Oriental and European, Jewish and Christian. Third thousand. 8°. Lond. 1844

Six sermons on the study of the Holy Scriptures, their nature, interpretation, and some of their most important doctrines [on 2 Tim. 2. 15; Psa. 19. 7; 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17; John, 15. 24; Heb. 7. 19; and John, 8. 58]. To which is annexed two dissertations,—I. On the reasonableness of the orthodox views of Christianity as opposed to the rationalism of Germany. II. On the interpretation of prophecy generally, with an original exposition of the Book of Revelation; shewing that the whole of that remarkable prophecy has long ago been fulfilled. 8°. Lond. 1830

LEECHMAN, William, D.D.

A learned divine of the Church of Scotland. Born in Lanarkshire 1706. Educated at the University of Edinburgh. Minister of Beith 1736. Professor of Theology in the University of Glasgow about 1743, of which he was appointed Principal 1761. Died 1785. The first and second Sermons in vol. 1 passed through many editions separately, and are still held in high estimation.

Sermons. To which is prefixed some account of the author's life, and of his lectures, by James Wodrow, D.D., Minister at Stevenston. 2 vol. 8°. Lond. 1789

LEIGHTON, Robert, D.D., Archbishop of Glasgow.

Born in London 1613. Educated at the University of Edinburgh. Minister of Newbattle, near Edinburgh, 1643. Became Principal of the University of Edinburgh, which he held ten years. Bishop of Dunblane about 1662. Archbishop of Glasgow, 1670. Resigned 1674. Retired to Broadhurst, Suffex. Died in London 1684. He is celebrated as a striking example of unfeigned piety, extensive learning, and unbounded liberality. "He had," says Bp. Burnet, "a sublime strain in preaching, with so grave a gesture, and such a majesty both of thought, of language, and of pronunciation, that I never once saw a wandering eye where he preached, and have seen whole assemblies often melt in tears before him." His exposition of St. Peter is rich in evangelical sentiment and exalted devotion, the meaning is admirably illustrated; there is learning without its parade, theology divested of systematic stiffness, and eloquence in a beautiful flow of unaffected language and appropriate imagery. The best edition of his works is by Pearson, 4 vol. 8°. and in a smaller type, 2 vol. 8°.

LEO the Great, Saint.One of the most eminent of the popes. Born at Rome.
Elected Pope 440. He condemned the Manichæans in a council at Rome 444, and extirpated the remains of Pellagianism in Italy. He persuaded, by his eloquence, Attila, king of the Huns, from attacking Rome; and when Genseric took that city in 445, he prevailed with him not to set fire to it. Died 461. He was a strict observer of ecclesiastical discipline. Best edition of his works 1753 at Venice.Opera, post Paschafii Quesnelli recensionem ad complures et præstantissimos MSS. codices ab illo non consultos exacta, emendata, et ineditis

LINGARD, John, D.D., LL.D.

An eminent Roman Catholic historian. Born at Winchester 1769. Studied at Douay. Returned to England, and took up his residence at Hornby, near Lancaster, where he devoted himself to a life of study and seclusion. At one time he was offered a cardinal's hat, which he refused. Died at Hornby 1851. His History of England is the composition of an able writer, who has opened fields of inquiry hitherto unexplored. It has given a new and often correct turn to facts of moment and will continue to be read and studied as the Romanist version of important events, told with calmness, in a simple, forcible, unaffected style, and by one who possessed in a very remarkable degree the power of condensation and abridgement.

LUTHER, Martin.

The celebrated reformer. Born at Illeben in Lower Saxony, 1483. Sent to the University of Erfurt 1501. Became an Augustine Monk and was ordained Priest 1507. Resisted the Pope's indulgences 1517. Burnt his bulls 1520. Died 1546. The most complete edition of his works was edited by J. G. Walch, 24 vol. 4°, Halle, 1737-53. It contains both his German and Latin works, with a translation of the latter into German. An edition of the German works is now in course of publication. (See below.) His Latin works have been published in 7 vol. folio, Wittenb. 1582 and other years; and in 4 vol. folio, Jenæ, 1712 and other years. Each containing some pieces not in the other. The edition in 7 vol. folio includes the Enarrations in Genesis.

Supplement to Essay IV.

Essay VIII. On the right interpretation of the language of Scripture, on allegory, &c.

A history of the life of the apostle Paul. To which are added, Proofs and illustrations.

Indexes.

This luminous and valuable work was the unremitting labour of nearly thirty years of the author's life; it contains an ample storehouse of observations to exercise not only the student, but the adept of divinity. The prefaces to the epistles, and the view and illustration of the facts and arguments are generally admirable. The commentary is in the form of a paraphrase; the notes discover very considerable acquaintance with sacred criticism.

The editions in 4 vol. 4°. 1795, and 6 vol. 8°. 1806, &c., contain the original Greek text printed parallel with the translation.

MAGDEBURG CENTURIES.

A celebrated Lutheran ecclesiastical history, so called from having been commenced in the city of Magdeburg and divided into centuries. The writers were Matthew Flaccius Illyricus, John Wigandus, Matthew Judex, and Basil Faber. Each century is divided into sixteen chapters, as follows: 1. A tabular view of the whole century; 2. The progressive enlargement of the Church; 3. The persecutions or tranquillity of the Church and the punishment of persecutors; 4. The doctrine of the Church; 5. Errors and heresies; 6. Rites and ceremonies; 7. Government of the Church, in which are included accounts of libraries, schools, power of magistrates, discipline, popes; 8. Schisms; 9. Councils held; 10. Lives of bishops and doctors; 11. Heretics; 12. Martyrs; 13. Miracles and prodigies; 14. The state of the Jews; 15. State of religion without the Church; 16. Political changes in the empire. Mosheim pronounces it "that immortal work, which restored to the light of evidence and truth the facts relating to the rise and progress of the Christian Church, which had been covered with thick darkness and corrupted by innumerable fables." The celebrated Annals of Baronius were undertaken in order to counteract the influence of this history. The work does not reach beyond the thirteenth century. The best edition is the original one of 1559 and following years, in 13 vol., each century making a volume, but generally bound in 8. The reprint in 3 vol. folio, Basil. 1624, was altered by the editor, Ludovicus Lucius, by various omissions and interpolations in order to make it more acceptable to the reformed who were not of the school of Luther.

Ecclesiastica historia, integrum ecclesie Christi ideam, quantum ad locum, propagationem, persecutionem, tranquillitatem, doctrinam, haereses, ceremonias, gubernationem, schismata, synodos, personas, miracula, martyria, religiones extra ecclesiam, et statum imperii politicum attinet, secundum singulas centurias, perspicuo ordine complectens: singulari diligentia et fide ex vetustissimis et optimis historicis, patribus, et aliis scriptoribus congesta: per aliquot studiosos et pios viros in urbe Magdeburgica. 8 vol. MAGEE, William, D.D., Archbishop of Dublin.

A learned divine. Born in Ireland, of parents in humble life, 1765. Educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he became Assistant-Professor of the Oriental languages. Senior Fellow and Professor of Mathematics 1806. Dean of Cork 1813. Bishop of Raphoe 1819. Archbishop of Dublin 1822. Died 1831. His Discourses on the Atonement exhibit profound learning and masterly skill as a dialectician; the style is correct, compact, and vigorous, and the notes are lively, terse, and elegant.

Works, now first collected and printed from the author's corrected copies. 2 vol. 8°.

MAIMBOURG, Louis.

Born at Nancy 1620; died 1686. A Jesuit historian and controvertist. Having taken the defence of the liberties of the Gallican Church in one of his works, he was obliged to retire from the religious society to which he belonged. The King of France rewarded him with a pension. Maimbourg, as a writer, is far from being truthful ; but his style is very agreeable, and his descriptions are interesting. The History of the Crusades is considered to be his best work. A complete list of his works is given by Joly in his Rémarques sur le Dictionnaire de Bayle.

MAIMONIDES, Moses, or Moses the son of Maimūn.

The most celebrated of the Rabbins, of whom the Jews have a saying, "From Moses to Moses there was none like Moses." Born of an illustrious family at Cordova, in Spain, 1135. Having been compelled to embrace Mahomedanism, he fled to Egypt, where he returned to his former religion. He became Physician to Saladin, and died at the age of seventy. The most famous among his numerous works are,—A Commentary on the Mishnah (See MISCHNAH), Mishneh Torah (Repetition of the Law), or Jad Chazakah (The Strong Hand), A digest of the Talmud (See TALMUD).

MALEBRANCHE, Nicolas.

Born at Paris 1638; died 1715. This celebrated philosopher belonged to the Oratory of St. Philip Neri. After having in vain tried to study ecclesiastical history and the Oriental languages, the perusal of one of Descartes's works led him to write on metaphysics. Received, in 1699, a member of the French Académie des Sciences. His views on the doctrines of grace were sharply criticized by Arnauld.

MANTON, Thomas, D.D.

One of the most eminent of the Nonconformist divines. Born at Lawrence Lydiard, Somersetshire, 1620. Entered of Wadham College, Oxford, 1635. Removed to Hart Hall 1639. Admitted to deacon's orders by Bishop Hall, but took no further orders in the Church. Presented to the living of Stoke Newington 1643. Rector of St. Paul's, Covent Garden, 1650. Received episcopal institution 1661. Resigned 1662, on account of the Act of Conformity. Died 1677. He was a man of great learning and extensive reading, of a sound judgment, and had the art of reducing volumes of divinity into a narrow compass. According to Charnock, he was the best collector of sense of the age. Dr. Bates says, "A clear judgment, rich fancy, strong memory, and happy elocution, met in him, and were ex-

Adagia quæcumque ad hanc diem exierunt,

Paulli Manutii ſtudio, atque induſtria, doctiſſimorum theologorum conſilio, atque ope, ab omnibus mendis vindicata quæ pium, et veritatis Catholicæ ſtudioſum lectorem poterant offendere : ſublatis etiam falſis interpretationibus, et nonnullis, quæ nihil ad propoſitam rem pertinebant, longis inanibuſque digreſſionibus. Quem laborem a ſacroſancti Concilii Tridentini Patribus Manutio mandatum, Gregorius XIII. motu proprio ita comprobavit, ut omnes Adagiorum libros, una excepta editione Manutiana, prohibeat, atque condemnet. Folio.

Florentiæ apud Juntas, 1575

This is Erasmus's Adagia, revifed and altered by Paulus Manutius.

A peace-offering to God: a sermon on Pla. 124. 6-8. [Thanksgiving for peace between England and Scotland.] 4°. Lond. 1641

The song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lambe: opened. A sermon before the House of Commons. Thanksgiving. [On Rev. 15. 3, 4.] 4°. Lond. 1643

A copy of a letter, to a friend of his in the City, for the necessary vindication of himself and his ministry, against that altogether groundless, most unjust and ungodly aspersions cast upon him by certain malignants in the City, and lately printed at Oxford, in their Mendacium Aulicum, otherwise called Mercurius Aulicus, and sent abroad into other nations to his perpetual infamy. In which letter the accusation is fully answered. And together with that, the lawfulness of the Parliament taking up defensive arms is briefly and learnedly asserted and demonstrated, texts of Scripture cleared, all objections to the contrary answered, to the full satisfaction of all those that desire to have their consciences informed in this great controversy. Pp. 30. 4°. Lond. 1643

Of the baptizing of infants: a sermon on 1 Pet. 3. 21. 4°. Lond. 1644

Answer to a book entitled, An Humble Remonstrance. See SMECTYMNUS.

MARSHALL, Thomas William, B.A.

Formerly Curate of Swallowcliffe.

Notes on the episcopal polity of the Holy Catholic Church; with some account of the development of the modern religious systems. 8°. Lond. 1844

MARSHALL, Walter.

Fellow of New College, Oxford, and of Winchester College. Became Vicar of Hursley, Hampshire. Ejected at the Restoration. Removed to Gosport, where he was pastor of a congregation.

The gospel mystery of sanctification opened in sundry practical directions. To which is added a sermon of justification [on Rom. 3. 23-26]. 8°. Lond. 1692

Numerous editions have been printed of this excellent book. It has been greatly commended by Hervey and others.

MARSHALL, William, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Organist of Christ Church Cathedral, St. John's College Chapel, and All Saints' Church, Oxford.

The art of reading church music: founded on a simple explanation of the first principles of music, and designed with special reference to facilitating the practice of choral psalmody. 8°. Oxf. 1842

A collection of [the words of] anthems used in the cathedral and collegiate churches of England and Wales. 12°. Oxf. 1840

MARSHAM, Sir John, Bart., M.A.

A very learned writer. Born in London 1602. Educated at Westminster School and St. John's College, Oxford. After travelling abroad, studied the law at the Temple, and was sworn one of the six clerks in Chancery. Suffered greatly during the Commonwealth for his loyalty. At the Restoration knighted and afterwards created a baronet. Died 1685. In his Chronicon Canon his principal object is to reconcile the Egyptian dynasties in which, according to Shuckford, he has succeeded.

Chronicon canon Ægyptiacus, Ebraicus, Græcus, et disquisitiones. Folio. Lond. 1672

MARSILIUS of Padua.

Flourished 1324.

Pastor of a large congregation at Dorking, Surrey, 1730, and at Cheshunt, Hertfordshire, 1746. Died 1763. His sermons are written in a plain and striking manner, free from all peculiarities of style and sentiment. His Self-Knowledge immediately on its publication became so popular that a new edition was annually demanded for several years. It is replete with maxims and precepts of the utmost importance.

Self-knowledge, a treatise shewing the nature and benefit of that important science, and the way to attain it. Sixth edition. 12°. Lond. 1758

Another, revised and corrected from the earlier and more perfect editions, with a life of the author prefixed, by John Mason Good, F.R.S. 12°. Lond. 1811

MASSILLON, John Baptist.

A member of the Oratory, and one of the most eminent of French preachers. Born in Provence 1663. After having been engaged in tuition in the south of France, he preached for the first time in Paris in 1699, and soon obtained great fame. During the Advent of the same year, he delivered a course of sermons at Versailles before the Court. In 1715, he pronounced the funeral oration of Louis XIV., one of his master-pieces. In 1717 he was consecrated Bishop of Clermont. In 1719 he entered the French Academy. Died 1742. He has been furnished the Racine of the pulpit and the Cicero of France. His characteristics as a preacher are tenderness and a soft and insinuating eloquence. "Massillon," says La Harpe, "rises above all the preachers that ever preceded or that have ever followed him in the number, variety, and excellence of his productions. A charming flow of uninterrupted elocution, an enchanting harmony, a choice of words which reach the heart, or speak to the imagination; an union of strength and sweetness, of dignity and grace, of severity and unctiōn; an inexhaustible variety of methods—all tend to set off each other; a surprizing richness of thought, an art of penetrating into the most secret recesses of the human heart, so as to astonish and confound it." D'Alembert calls the Petit Carême a model of true pulpit eloquence. That collection and the sermons on the Deity of Christ and on Lukewarmness are greatly admired. The edition of his sermons (or works) printed at Paris, 1745-49, 15 vol. 12°, is much esteemed, as it was superintended by the author's nephew, and corrected according to the original manuscripts. Numerous editions have been printed from it in 15 vol. 12°, 13 vol. 8°, 14 vol. 8°, 3 vol. 8°, and 2 vol. large 8°. In some modern editions the Penitences have been omitted.

MAUDE, John, M.A.

Vicar of St. Neot's, Huntingdon.

An apology for the clergy, in a letter to a gentleman of fortune and great reading, lately turned Methodist and hermit: Wherein is shewn the weakness of those objections which Separatists in general pretend first induced them to leave the Established Church, and to look out for better guides somewhere else. Pp. 80. 8°. Camb. 1745

MAUNDEVILLE, Sir John.

A native of St. Albans. He set out on his travels in 1322, and did not return until 1356. Soon after which he went abroad again, and died at Liege 1372. His narrative is interesting, but full of romantic stories. Originally published in 4°. 1568. An edition, with cuts, was printed in 8°. 1725, and reprinted, 8°. 1739.

Travels, A.D. 1322-1356.

MAUNDRELL, Henry, M.A.

An enterprising and enlightened traveller, of whose life little is known. Became Chaplain to the English factory at Aleppo; whence he set out for Jerusalem Feb. 1697. His account of his journey has always been greatly esteemed. Bishop Newton said, "Though a little book it is worth a folio, and is so accurately and ingeniously written, that it might serve as a model for all writers of travels." It was first published at Oxford 1698. The seventh edition, 8°, Oxf. 1749, is generally considered the best. It contains an index. The Journey to the Banks of the Euphrates at Beer, is considered inferior, and not likely to have been written by Maundrell.

A journey from Aleppo to Jerusalem at Easter 1697. Third edition. To which is now added, An account of the author's journey to the banks of Euphrates at Beer, and to the country of Mesopotamia. 8°. Oxf. 1714

MAYER, John, D.D.

A learned, able, and laborious divine of the Church of England, of whom no memorials have been discovered. It may be gathered from his prefaces that he laboured under infirm health, which had incapacitated him for public duty as a clergyman for twenty years before 1631, at which time he was Minister at Reydon in Suffolk. In this charge he does not appear to have continued long. He was living in 1653. His Commentary forms a most excellent digest of all the commentators that had preceded him. Their names are attached to each annotation. To these are added his own notes. The work is of very great rarity when complete. It is, perhaps, still the most full and satisfactory commentary in the English language.

A commentary upon the whole Old and New Testament; wherein the divers translations and expositions, literal and mystical, of all the famous commentators, both ancient and modern, are propounded, examined, and judged of, for the full satisfaction of the studious reader, and many most genuine notions inserted for edification in the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. 6 vol. folio, and 1 vol. 4°.

MEDE, Joseph, B.D.

A pious and profoundly learned divine. Born at Berden, Essex, 1586. Entered of Christ's College, Cambridge, of which he became a Fellow and Tutor, and was appointed Reader of Greek, which office he held during the remainder of his life. Died 1638. His works contain much elaborate exposition and a great variety of learned and ingenious criticism. Mede is universally allowed to have led the way to a correct and rational interpretation of the prophecies of Scripture. "A sublime genius arose," says Bishop Hurd, "in the beginning of the last century, and surprised the learned world with that great desideratum—a key to the Revelation." In the second edition of his works, published in 1664, much additional matter was introduced from the author's MSS., by Dr. Worthington. The third, published in 1672, has the reputation of being the best; but that it is so may be doubted, for Dr. Worthington only superintended the one published in 1664, as he died in 1671. That of 1672 is a reprint of 1664, with the following variations: some of the discourses in Book 1 are divided into two, as noted below; the discourses on Joel,

2. 17, and Matt. 5. 23, 24, do not appear in it, and it contains a discourse on Rev. 3. 19, which is not in the edition of 1664.

Works, corrected and enlarged according to the author's own manuscripts. [Second edition.] 2 vol. Folio. Lond. 1664

MELMOTH, William, Esq.

A learned and worthy Bencher of Lincoln's Inn, and a celebrated pleader. Born 1666. Called to the bar 1719. Treasurer of Lincoln's Inn for the year 1730. Died 1743. His only published work is his "Great Importance of a Religious Life," an admirable treatise, of which above a hundred thousand copies were sold during the last century. It was published anonymously, and was erroneously attributed to John Percival, the first Earl of Egmont, by Lord Orford in his Catalogue of Royal and Noble Authors.

The great importance of a religious life considered. To which are added some morning and evening prayers. Twelfth edition, corrected. [Anonymous.] 12°. Lond. 1749

The great importance of a religious life considered; to which are added some morning and evening prayers. A new edition, with a memoir of the author prefixed, and four appendices: I. Miscellaneous notes; II. Remarkable persons buried in the cloister under Lincoln's Inn Chapel; III. Short notices of prelates and eminent divines who have been preachers to the Society of Lincoln's Inn; IV. Sermons preached at the Warburtonian Lecture in Lincoln's Inn Chapel, which have been printed. [With an index to the four appendices.] By Charles Purton Cooper, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel and a Bencher of Lincoln's Inn. Super royal. 8°.

Lond. 1849

This edition privately printed, was intended for presents to the Benchers of Lincoln's Inn, and has never been completed; the index only reaching as far as Le Clerc in letter L.

MELMOTH, William.

Son of the above. Born 1710. Appointed one of the Commissioners of Bankrupts 1756, but passed his life chiefly in retirement. Died 1799. He was a man of learning and refined taste, and has given elegant translations of Pliny's Letters, Cicero's Letters, &c.

Letters on several subjects, by Sir Thomas Fitzosborne. 2 vol. 8°. Lond. 1749

The author's first work, published under the name of Fitzosborne. It contains just and liberal remarks on various topics moral and literary.

MICHAEL CERULARIUS.

Created Patriarch of Constantinople 1043. He was a determined enemy to the Church of Rome, and, in 1053, revived the famous contest between the Greek and Latin Churches, by a letter in which he accused the Latins of various errors. To this Leo IX. wrote a most imperious reply, and assembled a council at Rome, in which the Greek Churches were solemnly excommunicated.

Anonymous Treats respecting Middleton.

A vindication of liberty of conscience; of the toleration of Protestant Dissenters; and of the present happy establishment: in remarks on Dr. Middleton's Sermon preached before the Lord Mayor, &c. May 29. 1730. Pp. 30. 8°. Lond. 1734

A plain answer to Dr. Middleton's Letter from Rome; in which the gross misrepresentations contained therein are exposed and set in a just light. By a Friend to Truth. Pp. 22. 8°. Lond. 1741

Observations on a book, intitled, An Introductory Discourse to a larger Work, &c. Containing an answer to the author's prejudices, that miraculous powers were not continued to the Church after the days of the Apostles. Pp. 33. 8°. Lond. 1747

A view of the controversy concerning the miraculous powers, which are supposed to have subsisted in the Christian Church, from the earliest ages, through several successive centuries. As it stands, between the Introductory Discourse to a larger Work designed hereafter to be published, and Observations on the Introductory Discourse. With occasional remarks on other writers in this controversy. And a postscript, occasioned by Mr. Brooke's Defence Miraculorum, &c. Pp. 153. 8°. Lond. 1748

A letter to the Rev. Mr. John Jackson, occasioned by his Remarks on Dr. Middleton's Free Inquiry, &c. In which is shewn that we have no sufficient reason to believe, upon the authority of the Primitive Fathers, that any such powers were continued to the Church after the days of the apostles. And likewise, that the Primitive Fathers have not, according to Mr. Jackson's own account, preserved, in their writings, the pure and uncorrupted faith and doctrines of Christ and his apostles. Pp. 60. 8°. Lond. 1749

A defence of the letter to the Rev. Mr. John Jackson. Occasioned by his Remarks on Dr. Middleton's Free Inquiry, &c. Being an answer to the Appendix to the second edition of his Remarks. To which is added, A letter to Mr. Whiston, &c. By the author of the Letter. Pp. 59. 8°. Lond. 1749

MILTON, John.

- The most illustrious of English poets. Born in London 1608. Educated at St. Paul's School, whence he was removed to Christ's College, Cambridge, 1625. Travelled abroad 1638. On his return became a schoolmaster in London. During the Commonwealth he was appointed Latin secretary to Cromwell. Died 1674. The principal editions of his poetical works are:—By Bishop Newton, with notes of various authors, 3 vol. 4°, 1749-52, and 4 vol. 8°, 1753, and other dates. By the Rev. H. J. Todd, 7 vol. 8°, 1809, and (without the verbal index) 6 vol. 8°, 1826. By Sir E. Bridges, 6 vol. fm. 8°, 1835. His prose works were first published by Toland, 3 vol. folio, Amst. 1697-8; but, through error or ignorance, some of Milton's tracts were printed from first editions, although afterwards they had been republished with considerable additions. Reprinted 2 vol. folio, 1738,—a very incorrect edition. With life by Birch, 2 vol. 4°, 1753,—very correct. By Symmond, 7 vol. 8°, 1806. In 1 vol. imperial 8°, 1837; 5 vol. fm. 8°, 1848-53; and with the poetical works, 8 vol. 8°, 1851,—a most beautiful and correct edition.
- Prose works. With a preface, preliminary remarks, and notes, by J. A. St. John. 5 vol. Sm. 8°. Lond. 1848-53

MISCHNA.

Mischnah (that is, repetition, namely, of the law). This name is given to the compilation of Rabbinical laws which appears to have been commenced by Hillel, about thirty years before Christ. The present extent and arrangement of the Mischnah is the work of R. Jehudah Hanafi (i. e. the prince), A.D. 219, and his disciples. The Mischnah consists of six sedarim, or parts. Each seder (part) is divided into perakim, or sections, and each perek, or section, is composed of a number of short paragraphs, containing the dicta of the Rabbins, each paragraph bearing the name of Mischnah. The Mischnah forms the text of the Gemara, i. e. complement or body of Jewish theology. (See TALMUD.) Among the most celebrated commentaries on the Mischnah may be mentioned those of Raschi (see ante JARCHI), Maimonides, and Obadiah di Bertinoro. One or more of the works of those rabbins are generally added to the editions of the Mischnah and the Talmud.

The Mischnah, with the commentary of Bertinoro; the Tosephoth, or additions, of Jom Tob; and the Tosephoth Chadafchim, or new additions. In Hebræw. 6 vol. 4°.

MOLINOS, Michael de.

Founder of the sect of Quietists. Born in the diocese of Saragosa, in Spain, 1627. Resided mostly at Rome, where his ardent piety and devotion procured him a considerable number of disciples. On account of his mystical opinions he was imprisoned by the Inquisition 1685. Died in prison 1696. He held that religion consists in the perfect tranquillity of a mind removed from all external and finite things, and centred in God. Madame Guion was one of his disciples.

MORERI, Lewis.

A Roman Catholic divine. Born in Provence 1643. Studied at the Jesuits' College at Aix and at Lyons, in which town he became a successful preacher. Died 1680. His celebrated Dictionary was originally published in 1674, 1 vol. folio, the second, enlarged into 2 vols., was prepared by him and published 1681. Numerous editions followed successively, with additions and corrections by Le Clerc and others. The last and best is that of 1759, in 10 vol. It forms a vast storehouse of valuable information, particularly in the biographical part. The numerous errors in the earlier edition originated Bayle's great Dictionary, but his work is restricted to select articles.

MORINUS, John.

Born at Blois 1591, of a Protestant family. Became a Roman Catholic. Entered the Oratory in 1618, and soon made himself known by his erudition. Died 1659. He was an eminent divine and Oriental scholar, intimately acquainted with the Councils and the Fathers, and by the works he published entitled to rank among the most learned men of his age. He was a zealous advocate for the superiority of the Samaritan Pentateuch and the Septuagint version over the Hebrew text. He was consulted by Urban VIII. on his project of union with the Oriental Churches.

This work was published by R. Simon. It contains the correspondence of Morinus with various learned men on different points of ecclesiastical antiquity. It is preceded by a life, or rather a satire against Morinus.

Other works: Diatribe Elenchica de Sinceritate Hebræi Græcique textus dignoscenda, adversus infanas quorundam Hæreticorum Calumnias, 8°. Par. 1639. Opuscula Hebræo-Samaritana (containing a Samaritan Grammar and Lexicon). Opera posthuma de Catechumenorum Expiatione, de Sacramento Confirmationis, &c. 4°. 1703. Declaration, &c. 1654. This was an exposé of the defects in the government of the Oratory. It was suppressed, and is of great rarity. Morinus also edited an edition of the Septuagint, printed with a Latin Translation and Notes by Nobilius, 3 vol. folio, 1628; or, with another title, 1641. Also the Samaritan Pentateuch printed in Le Jay's Polyglott.

MORNING EXERCISES.

This celebrated body of divinity by various eminent divines of the seventeenth century originated in the times of the civil wars. The sermons were delivered at an early morning service set apart for prayer for the welfare of the public, and for particular cases and exhortations to the people. They treat on a variety of useful subjects, practical as well as doctrinal, in answer to questions proposed, and some of them on cases of conscience. Tillotson, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, was one of the preachers. The volumes had become exceedingly scarce when reprinted in 1844. This edition was edited with great ability and care.

Morning Exercises at Cripplegate, St. Giles-in-the-Fields, and in Southwark, being divers sermons preached A.D. 1659-1689, by several ministers of the gospel in or near London. Fifth edition, carefully collated and corrected, with notes and translations by James Nichols. 6 vol. 8°. Lond. 1844

MOSHEIM, John Lawrence.

An illustrious Lutheran divine. Born at Lubeck 1695, of a noble family. Devoted himself to the Church, received ordination, and became an eloquent and useful preacher. Professor of Divinity at Helmsådt 1723. Professor of Divinity at Göttingen and Chancellor 1747. Died 1755. In depth of judgment, extent of learning, purity of taste, powers of eloquence, and in laborious application to all the branches of erudition and philology, he had few superiors. The best edition of his Institutiones Historiæ Ecclesiasticæ is that of 1764. Maclaine's translation, though "eloquent, is now superseded by that of Murdock, which is much more faithful to the original." The best edition is that by Soames, which is improved in the English history.

MOSSOM, Robert, Bishop of Derry.

A learned and pious divine. At the time he published his Preacher's Tripartite (1657) he was engaged in "school tuition near Blackfriars." In that work, he styles himself "Preacher of God's Word, late at St. Peter's, Paul's Wharf, London, quondam à Col. S.P.C." Probably he was at that time silenced. Dean of Christ Church, Dublin, 1660. Prebendary of York 1662. Bishop of Derry 1666. Died 1679.

The preacher's tripartite, in three books: 1. To raise devotion in divine meditations on Psalm 25; 2. To administer comfort by conference with the soul in particular cases of conscience; 3. To establish truth and peace, in several sermons against the present heresies and schisms. Folio. Lond. 1657

MOYER LECTURE.

Established by Lady Rebecca Moyer, sister of Sir William Jolliffe, Knt., and widow of Sir Samuel Moyer, Bart., a rich Turkey merchant, who was Sheriff of Essex 1698, and died 1716. Lady Moyer died about 1722. She established the Lecture before her death, and left, by will, twenty pounds annually, chargeable on her dwelling-house in Bedford Row, "to be paid to an able minister of God's word, to preach eight sermons every year on the Trinity and Divinity of our ever-blessed Saviour, beginning with the first Thursday in November, and to the first Thursday in the seven sequal months, in St. Paul's, if permitted there; or, if not, elsewhere." The following is a complete list of the Lectures, as far as can be ascertained. The Lectures terminated about 1774, the lease having then expired of the estate out of which the annual payment was made. For further contents, see under each author.

MURATORI, Lewis Anthony.

One of the most learned men of his age, and a most voluminous writer and editor. Born in the Duchy of Modena 1672. Appointed Librarian of the Ambrosian Library at Milan 1695. Died 1750. His great work, Rerum Italicarum Scriptores, was printed at the expense of several noblemen and gentlemen,—fixteen of them contributed 4000 dollars each.

Anecdota ex Ambrosianæ bibliothecæ codicibus nunc primum eruta, notis et dissertationibus illustrata. 4 vol. in 2. Padv. 1713*

Vol. 1. Contains four poems attributed to S. Paulinus, on the festival of St. Felix of Nolanus, with twenty-three dissertations containing curious researches on these two saints, and the customs of the Primitive Church.

Vol. 2. Contains several opuscula relative to the heresy of the Manicheans, with dissertations, of which one is on the crown of iron preserved at Pavia.

Vol. 3. Contains Tertullian de Oratione, from a better MS. than had been printed, and various pieces of ecclesiastical authors of the middle age.

Vol. 4. Contains many sermons of S. Maximus Turinensis; a curious antiphony of the monastery of Bangor, in Ireland; some small pieces and the lives of the patriarchs of Aquileia, to the fifteenth century.

NAPIER, John, Lord of Merchiston, in Scotland.

The celebrated inventor of logarithms. Born 1550. Studied at the University of St. Andrews, after which he made the tour of France, Italy, and Germany. On his return he applied himself chiefly to the study of mathematics and the Scriptures. His work on the Revelation indicates the most acute investigation.

A plaine discovery of the whole Revelation of St. John, set down in two treatises; the one searching and proving the true interpretation thereof; the other applying the same paraphrastically and historically to the text. Whereunto are annexed certain Oracles of Sibylla, and also an epistle omitted in the last edition. Fifth edition, corrected and amended. 4°.

Index.

A laborious, able, and well-written work, although it is too much the object of the writer to elevate the character of the Puritans and Nonconformists at the expense of the members of the Established Church, forgetting that the ejected were once the ejectors. It was answered by Madox and Grey. The best editions are those by Toulmin, who has in his notes animadverted on the objections of those writers.

ORDINATION. Anonymous works.

De ordinatione, dissertatio historica. Pp. 46. 8°. Lond. 1713

A defence of the layman's vindication, &c. Containing, I. A full answer to what is offered against it in a late pamphlet, entitled, A Defence of the Vindication of Presbyterian Ordination, &c. II. An answer to what Mr. Shaw offers against it in his Appendix, as far as the divine right of Episcopacy or validity of Presbyterian ordination are concerned. III. A proof of the invalidity of Presbyterian ordination. By a Layman. Pp. 38. 8°. Lond. 1716

The invalidity of the Dissenting ministry, or Presbyterian ordination an irregular and unjustifiable practice. In answer to Mr. Peirce's sermon, Presbyterian Ordination proved Regular; and to all the pretended instances of Presbyterian ordination, in a book lately published by Mr. Charles Owen, called, The Validity of the Dissenting Ministry; with remarks on the forgery and dishonesty of that writer. To which is added, An impartial view and censure of the mistakes propagated for the ordaining power of Presbyters; in a celebrated work, entitled, An Enquiry into the Constitution, Discipline, Unity, and Worship of the Primitive Church, that flourished within the first 300 years after Christ. By a Presbyter of the Church of England. Two parts. 8°. Lond. 1717-18

ORESIVS [ORESME], Nicholas, Lexoviensis.

Born at Caen, in Normandy. Educated at the University of Paris, and became doctor of the Sorbonne. Grand Master of the College of Navarre 1355, which he raised to pre-eminent celebrity. Became successively Archdeacon of Bayeux, Dean of the Chapter of Rouen, and Treasurer of the Holy Chapel at Paris. In 1360 King John appointed him preceptor to his son, afterwards Charles V. Having been sent, in 1363, to transact important business with Pope Urban V., he signalled himself by delivering his famous "Sermo coram Papam," in which he expatiated freely on the irregularities of the Papal court. Bishop of Lisieux 1377. Died 1382.

ORIGEN.

An illustrious father of the Church, surnamed Adamantius, from his invincible firmness. Born at Alexandria, in Egypt, about 185. He was a pupil of Ammonius, the philosopher, while Clemens Alexandrinus was his preceptor in theology. Became Catechist, or Professor of Sacred Learning, in the Church of Alexandria, and devoted himself to a life of great austerity. Thrown into prison and tortured in the Decian persecution. Died at Tyre, aged sixty-nine. As he excelled in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, his commentaries are valuable, although his interpretations are often mystical and allegorical. In his other works he advances opinions more agreeable to the Platonic philosophy than the Scriptures. He held the doctrine of the final restoration of the souls of bad men and devils. Best edition of his works, Par. 1733-59. In this edition the Homilies on St. Matthew, which appear in the old editions, are given in the form of commentaries, and marked Vetus Interpretatio. Best edition of his Hexapla, that of Montfaucon, 1713.

Opera omnia, quæ Græcè vel Latine tantum existant et ejus nomine circumferuntur, ex variis editionibus et codicibus manu exaratis, Gallicanis, Italicis, Germanicis, et Anglicis, collecta, recensita, Latine versa, atque annota-

The most eminent and learned of the Independent divines. Born at Stadham, Yorkshire, 1616. Studied at Queen's College, Oxford. After taking his degree in arts, he turned Nonconformist, and in the Rebellion distinguished himself so zealously that he was presented to the living of Fordham, in Essex, from whence he removed to Coggeshall. He preached the sermon before the House of Commons on the day after the murder of Charles I. Dean of Christ Church, Oxford, 1651. Served the office of Vice-Chancellor with great credit. Deprived at the Restoration. Minister of a congregation in Leadenhall Street, London, 1673. Died 1683. In doctrine he was a Calvinist. He was a divine of great talents, profoundly learned, and moderate and candid in controversy. His works were for the first time collected in 1826, in 21 vol. 8°, to which was added the Commentary on Hebrews, formerly printed in 7 vol. 8°; in all 28 vol. A new edition of the works, without the Commentary on Hebrews, edited with great ability by the Rev. Dr. Goold, has recently been published at Edinburgh, in 16 vol. 8°. To which it is intended to add the Commentary on Hebrews, and the Theologumena.

PARKER, Samuel, D.D., F.R.S., Bishop of Oxford.

A man of some learning, and a writer of considerable wit, but of unsteady principles. Born at Northampton 1640. Educated among the Puritans. Admitted of Wadham College, Oxford, 1659; whence he removed to Trinity College. At the Restoration, changed his principles from Independency, and became a zealous writer for Episcopacy. Archdeacon of Canterbury 1670. Prebendary of Canterbury, and Rector of Ickham and Chartham, Kent, 1672. Bishop of Oxford 1686. Became subservient to the views of King James II. in favour of the Roman Catholic religion. Died 1687. His Ecclesiastical Polity gave rise to a controversy with Andrew Marvell.

A discourse of ecclesiastical politie; wherein the authority of the civil magistrate over the consciences of subjects in matters of external religion is asserted, the mischiefs and inconveniences of toleration are represented, and all pretences pleaded in behalf of liberty of conscience are fully answered. PARKER, Samuel.

Son of Bp. Samuel Parker. An excellent scholar, and a man of singular modesty. Married a bookfeller's daughter at Oxford, where he resided, and appears to have had a situation in the Bodleian Library. He declined taking the oaths at the Revolution, and therefore did not enter into orders. His son founded the bookfelling establishment at Oxford, which still remains in the family. The Bibliotheca Biblica is a commentary of profound learning and research. It is to be regretted that it was not carried beyond the Pentateuch.

Bibliotheca Biblica; being a commentary upon all the books of the Old and New Testament, gathered out of the genuine writings of fathers and ecclesiastical historians, and acts of councils down to the year of our Lord 451, &c.; comprehending the proper allegorical, or mystick, and moral import of the text, &c. PARKER, Thomas.

A Puritan divine. Son of Robert Parker. Was sometime of Newbery, in Berkshire; went to New England 1634, and became Pastor of the church at Newbery there.

Died 1677.

The visions and prophecies of Daniel expounded; wherein the mistakes of former interpreters are modestly discovered, and the true meaning of the text made plain by the words and circumstances of it. The same also illustrated by clear instances taken out of histories which relate the events of time mystically foretold by the holy prophet. Amongst other things of note, touching the two witnesses, the New Jerusalem, the Thousand Years, &c., here is propounded a new way for the finding out of the determinate time signified by Daniel in his seventy weeks; when it did begin, and when we are to expect the end thereof. 4°. Lond. 1646

PARSONS, or PERSONS, Robert.

A celebrated Jesuit, and one of the best writers of the time of Elizabeth. Born at Stowey, Somersetshire, 1546. Admitted of Balliol College, Oxford, 1563, of which he became Fellow and a famous tutor. Resigned 1574, and embraced the Roman Catholic religion, of which he became a zealous defender. Went to Rome, and was chosen a member of the Society of Jesus 1575. Sent as a mis-sionary into England; after which he went to Rouen, where he composed his Christian Directory, an excellent book of practical divinity. Died at Rome 1610. His works are very numerous.

A Christian directory, guiding men to their eternal salvation, divided into three books; the first whereof appertaining to resolution, is only contained in this volume, divided into two parts, and set forth now again with many corrections and additions. 8°. s. l. 1673
First published 1583, in 8°.

A Christian directory, being a treatise of holy resolution, in two parts, put into modern English, and now made public for the instruction of the ignorant, the conviction of the unbelieving, the awakening and reclaiming the vicious, and confirming the religious in their good purposes, by George Stanhope, D.D., Dean of Canterbury. PASCAL, Blaise.

One of the most illustrious writers that France has produced; a mathematician of the first rank; a sublime philosopher, and an eloquent apologist of the Christian religion. Born at Clermont, in Auvergne, 1623. Studied at Paris, and at an early age made important discoveries in mathematics. At the age of twenty-four he renounced human learning, and devoted himself to a life of religious meditation, mortification, and prayer, in close intimacy with the Jesuits of Port-Royal, in whose cause against the Jesuits he published in 1656 his celebrated Provincial Letters, under the name of Louis de Montalte, "which," says Velltaire, "may be considered a model of eloquence and humour; the best comedies of Molière have not more wit than the first part of them, and the sublimity of the latter part is equal to anything in Bossuet." His Thoughts on Religion, published posthumously, from a collection of his loose papers, intended to form part of a work against atheists and unbelievers, have enjoyed great reputation. A much enlarged edition, from the originals, was edited by Faugère, 2 vol. 8°. Par. 1844. Pascal died 1662. His Œuvres were collected and published in 5 vol. 8°, 1779; well edited by the Abbé Bossuet. They were reprinted 5 vol. 8°, Paris, 1819, with an essay by M. François "Sur les meilleurs ouvrages écrits en prose dans la langue Française."

PASCHASIUS Rathertus.

A celebrated Benedictine of the ninth century. Born at Soissons. Elected Abbot of the Abbey of Corbey 844, which he afterwards resigned. Died 865. In his work, De Corpore Christi, he taught that the same body of Christ which ascended into heaven, is present in the Eucharist. This treatise made a great noise, and was answered by Bertram, John Scotus Erigena, and others. He is said to have been the first who introduced the doctrine of transubstantiation.

Lond. 1695, &c.

A critical commentary and paraphrase on the Old and New Testament and the Apocrypha, by Patrick, Lowth, Arnald, Whitby, and Lowman. Corrected by the Rev. J. R. Pitman. 6 vol. Royal 4°.

Lond. 1822*

The historical and poetical books of the Old Testament, by Bp. Patrick; the Prophets, by W. Lowth; the Apocrypha, by Arnald; the New Testament (with the exception of the Revelation), by Whitby; the Revelation, by Lowman. A new edition, with the text printed at large (not formerly given), 4 vol. imp. 8°. 1853, and other dates. Various editions in folio, which are esteemed for the large type with which they are printed; none of them contain Lowman, and but few copies contain Arnald. In that size the work is in 6 vol. without Arnald, which makes a seventh when added.

PAUL Sarpi.

Commonly called Father Paul; also, Fra Paolo, or Pietro Soave Polano. Born at Venice 1552. Entered the Order of Servites and became principal of his order. In 1602 he wrote against the Papal power, in the dispute between the Pope and Venice. After which he lived in a very retired manner, and in his seclusion wrote the History of the Council of Trent in Italian, the MS. of which was sent by Sir Henry Wotton to King James I., so that the first edition was printed at London in 1619, in folio. The French translation with Courayer's notes is the most useful edition. The works of Father Paul in Italian were published in 8 vol. 4°, 1761-68, and in 24 vol. 8°, Napoli, 1789-90.

Historia del concilio Tridentino di Pietro Soave Polano. Seconda edizione riveduta e corretta dall' autore. Gen. 1629

Histoire de Concile de Trente, écrite en Italien, traduite de nouveau en François, avec des notes, critiques, historiques, et theologiques, par Pierre-François le Courayer. 3 vol. 4°. Amst. 1751

Vol. 3 contains a defence of the translation, by the author, not in the former editions.

The history of the Council of Trent, containing eight books. In which, besides the ordinary Acts of the Council, are declared many notable occurrences which happened in Christendom, during the space of forty years and more, and particularly the practices of the Court of Rome, to hinder the reformation of their errors and to maintain their greatness. Translated by Sir Nathaniel Brent, Knt. Whereunto is added,
